Presentation Topic

“The Seven Deadly Sins of Data Collection and Use”

Presenter: Xavier Irias (Woodard & Curran)

Every day, in every city, field data are collected to support infrastructure projects: data such as storm drain inverts, locations of water valves, or key topo shots. And every day, one or more of the Seven Deadly Sins of Data Collection and Use are committed, resulting in the risk of design errors and construction snafus. The sins range from those made in the field during data collection, to those made in the office when using the data. This presentation will describe some common mistakes, aka “sins”, and provide straightforward ways to avoid them including proper use of standards.
